CIB Endorsed Student Chapters

The Hong Kong Polytechnic University CIB Endorsed Student Chapter Research reports on a Busy Year

Richard Qing CHEN, President of the CIB Endorsed Student Chapter 2009/10

The very active Hong Kong Polytechnic University CIB-endorsed Student Chapter has sent the Secretariat an e-version of its 2008/9 newsletter (see here).

The Chapter newsletter reports on a busy year with numerous activities organized by the students and staff who support the Chapter. These range from reports on an exchange seminar with the ShenZhen University, and a site visit to observe the six day floor cycle being adopted on a new housing estate, through to Chapter organized workshops and research presentations.

The newsletter is copiously illustrated and provides an insight into the activities and innovations of a Chapter that obviously works well in providing its members with a stimulating programme of activities. In particular it is clear that the Chapter places emphasis on the value of research and researchers, and the importance of applying research results in the education programme.

The CIB Guidelines for CIB Endorsed Student Chapters (currently being reviewed) have always emphasised that one of the main purposes of such Chapters is to bring able students, supporting staff and researchers together, so that the next generation of researchers is exposed to the exciting range of vital research that is being done, especially by members of CIB Commissions and Task Groups.

This is a collaborative activity, which the students and staff of Hong Kong Polytechnic University CIB-endorsed Student Chapter have obviously sought to pursue.
