Built and Human Environment 8th International Postgraduate Research Conference

Prague, Czech Republic, 26-27 June 2008

Introduction

The Research Institute for the Built and Human Environment (BuHu) at the University of Salford, UK, is organising its annual two-day International Conference for postgraduates researching in the field of the built environment. The 2008 event, hosted in the beautiful, historical city of Prague by The Czech Technical University of Prague (CVUT), is the 8th conference of this highly successful series.

This two day event will feature keynote addresses by leading internationally renowned research and policy makers. This event is jointly organised by The Research Institute for the Built & Human Environment (BuHu) at the University of Salford. BuHu (6* RAE rated), The School of Built Environment (SOBE) at the University of Salford and The Czech Technical University of Prague (CVUT).

The conference offers an important opportunity for built environment researchers to meet together to gain an insight into current international research in their field as well as to gain valuable conference experience. Led by key academics the conference provides opportunities to enhance and develop research skills, to network and to exchange research ideas and activities in a supportive environment.
